

Teen Advocacy

Dating violence and sexual assault are experienced by all teens either directly or indirectly. Girls between the ages of 16 and 24 experience the highest per capita rates of intimate violence.

Teen advocacy at Waypoint can help teen survivors of dating violence explore emotions, navigate the legal or criminal justice system, create safety plans, or get connected to other community resources.

It also offers opportunities for empowerment through education, creative expression, and social connection.